

There are 5 main kinds of French verbs: -er, -ir, -re, stem-changing, and irregular. Firstly, we must practise on the rules of conjugation first kind of verb, -re verbs, the smallest category of regular verbs.

Here are some of the -re verbs to conjugate:

attendre	to wait (for)
défendre	to defend
descendre	to descend
entendre	to hear
perdre	to lose
prétendre	to claim
rendre	to give back, to return something
répondre	to answer
vendre	to sell

The verb form that ends in -re is called the infinitive (in English, the infinitive is the verb preceded by the word "to"). -re is the infinitive ending. The verb without the -re is called the stem or radical.

To conjugate an -re verb, remove the infinitive ending and then add the appropriate endings, as follows:

		Singular	Plural
1st person	je	-s	nous -ons
2nd person	tu	-s	vous -ez
3rd person	il	(nothing)	ils -ent

Thus to conjugate descendre, you would remove the infinitive ending to find the radical descend- and then add the appropriate endings:

descendre		Singular	Plural
1st person	je	descends	nous      descendons
2nd person	tu	descends	vous      descendez
3rd person	il	descend	ils        descendant

All regular -re verbs are conjugated according to this pattern. The French verbs dire, écrire, and lire are irregular, but in the present tense their conjugations are very similar.

	Dire (to say, tell)	Écrire (to write)	Lire (to read)
je	dis		lis
j'		écris
tu	dis	écris	lis
il, elle, on	dit	écrit	lit
nous	disons	écrivons	lisons
vous	dites	écrivez	lisez
ils, elles	disent	écrivent	lisent

Dire can mean to say or to tell.

Je dis 'bonjour' à Fatima chaque matin.	I say 'hello' to Fatima every morning.
Nous voulons dire une prière dimanche.	We want to say a prayer on Sunday.
Dit-il la vérité ?	Is he telling the truth?
Je dois te dire quelque chose.	I need to tell you something.

Écrire means to write.

Ils écrivent seulement en français.
À qui écris-tu ?
Je vais écrire une lettre ce soir.

They only write in French.
Who are you writing to?
I'm going to write a letter tonight.

Lire means to read.

Elle lit très vite.
Nous lisons le même livre.
Aimez-vous lire les journaux ?

She reads very quickly.
We're reading the same book.
Do you like to read newspapers?

Irregular verbs are the bane of every French student's existence, but there are some patterns in the irregularities - once you learn the conjugations for one verb in a group, one doesn't have any trouble with the other verbs in that group. The bad news is that the majority of irregular verbs end in -RE, so there are a lot of patterns to learn.

There are seven kinds of -RE verbs

1. prendre and its derivatives
2. battre and its derivatives
3. mettre and its derivatives
4. rompre and its derivatives
5. verbs that end in -aindre, -eindre, and -oindre
6. completely irregular verbs (faire, connaître, etc.)

1. The first group of irregular -RE verbs includes prendre and all of its derivatives (comprendre, etc). The endings for these verbs are as follows:

	Singular		Plural
je	-s	nous	-ons
tu	-s	vous	-ez
il	-	ils	-ent

These verbs drop the d in the radical in the 1st and 2nd person plural forms and double the n in the 3rd person plural form.

PRENDRE

je	prends	nous	prenons
tu	prends	vous	prenez
il	prend	ils	prennent

2. The second group of irregular -RE verbs includes battre and all of its derivatives (débattre, etc.) The endings for these verbs are as follows:

je	-s	nous	-ons
tu	-s	vous	-ez
il	-	ils	-ent

These verbs drop a t in the singular forms.

BATTRE

je	bats	nous	battons
tu	bats	vous	battez
il	bat	ils	battent

3. The third group of irregular -RE verbs includes mettre and all of its derivatives (promettre, etc.) These verbs are conjugated just like group 2 (the battre verbs) in the present tense, but have a different passé simple and past participle.

4. The fourth group of irregular -RE verbs includes rompre and its derivatives (corrompre, interrompre) The endings for these verbs are as follows:

je	-s	nous	-ons
tu	-s	vous	-ez
il	-t	ils	-ent

These verbs are conjugated exactly like regular -RE verbs with the single exception of the third person singular present tense, which adds a t after the stem.

ROMPRE

je	romps	nous	rompons
tu	romps	vous	rompez
il	rompt	ils	rompent

5. The fifth group of irregular -RE verbs includes

- craindre and all verbs that end in -aindre (plaindre, etc)
- peindre and all verbs that end in -eindre (ceindre, etc.)
- joindre and all verbs that end in -oindre (rejoindre, etc.)

The endings for these verbs are as follows:

je	-s	nous	-ons
tu	-s	vous	-ez
il	-t	ils	-ent

These verbs drop the d in the root in all forms, and add a g in front of the n in the plural forms.

PEINDRE

je	peins	nous	peignons
tu	peins	vous	peignez
il	peint	ils	peignent

6. Completely irregular -RE verbs: These verbs have unique or difficult conjugations that it would be nearly impossible to describe, so you have to memorize each one separately. Try working on one verb a day until you've mastered them all. Click on each verb for a table of its conjugations. Any derivatives conjugated the same way are listed under the conjugation table for each verb.
